Parents & Carers

The government has stated that all young people must stay in some form of education or training until at least their 18th birthday. This does not necessarily mean staying in school; young people have a choice about how they continue in education or training post 16, which could be through an apprenticeship or traineeship.

Please refer to the one page factsheet "A parent's guide to apprenticeships" for a brief summary.
